

WASHINGTON, DC – Congressman Joe Courtney today announced that his Norwich district office will be relocating to nearby office space at the Mercantile Exchange Building – 55 Main St. – in Norwich. The new location is just one block from the office’s current location, but is more accessible, has more storage and meeting space, and provides better security for staff and constituents visiting the office.

“As a Member of Congress, constituent services are my absolute top priority” said Congressman Courtney.

“The Norwich office’s new location will help my team of caseworkers better serve the men and women of eastern Connecticut, and help them solve their problems in a safe, secure environment.”

The Norwich district office will be closed on Feb. 14 and 15 during the move. Constituents requiring assistance on those days, may contact Congressman Courtney’s offices in Enfield and Washington, DC., which will be open as usual.

The Norwich district office’s new address and contact information (which is unchanged) are below:
